What I claim as my invention is metal alignment trailer brackets. I call my invention (TAB) for short. I claim that my brackets are my own design and this design can be modified to ensure a quality product by Federal and State rules and guidelines. I have researched and developed this tool and hereby obtain sole purpose of this object. I want full rights of protection from any other individuals, groups, organizations, etc. from designing or manufacturing such product.

These slotted brackets are made to the material design of trailers that are used to tow behind vehicles. My brackets, when installed on any typed of trailer can be adjusted to ensure exact alignment of the axles and wheels. My invention does save on tire wear, saves fuel of the tow vehicle and give a positive unmeasurable safety factor in the towing operation of any trailer. I do not know anyone who has this idea or design. Thank you
